The Lexington Herald of Wednesday says:

"The wedding was very quiet, with only the relatives and a few intimate friends present.

Assaulted By Footpads.

David Doty, a well-known young man of this city, was assaulted by supposed footpads as he was passing on Cypress street at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday morning while enroute to his home from the street fair, and terribly beaten up. Robbery was the probable motive as he had been keeping door at one of the attractions and his assailants evidently thought he had the night's proceeds in his possession.

Mr. Doty was struck over the right temple and rendered unconscious. He remembers nothing until he found himself at home, where he had been carried. Five stitches were required to close the wound. He has no clue to his assailants.

Railroad Corruption Admitted.

The admission of A. W. Trenholm, general manager of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad, that his company had used money for political purposes, is only extraordinary from the fact that this political corruption is admitted. The evidence was given at a hearing before the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission on September 20th. The particular acts admitted were sending special agents into Wisconsin to defeat Gov. LaFollette and to elect Republican members of the Senate of that state "unfavorable to the LaFollette interests."

The same efforts have been exerted by the railroad managers in other states, and it is notorious that the railroad money and free passes, have almost universally been used for the benefit of Republican candidates. Voters who believe that this political corruption will undermine the Republic, and every honest voter must feel that way, should scrutinize the characters and affiliations of candidates for Congress and Legislatures and vigorously oppose those who are suspected of corporation leanings and elect only those who are free from such taint.

Turn the Rascals Out.

The system of disposing of the spoils of office, not included under the civil service rules, in the Southern States is decidedly partisan and presents a front of organized activity that is refreshingly Republican. The President has turned over the disposal of these Federal offices to a Republican boss, or a committee of bosses, themselves officeholders, or office seekers. In North Carolina the recent Republican convention passed a resolution requiring all candidates for Federal positions to file applications for positions with the executive committee and to agree in writing to abide by the decision of the Committee. So bold have these office-holders become in their partisan activity that Senator Simmons declares that "they present a front of organized activity never before shown by them in this State," and he further declared, "if the people could not otherwise procure protection against unwarranted interference" he would deem it his duty to call the matter to the attention of Congress and ask for an investigation. Yet this Administration claims to be in favor of Civil Service Reform and opposed to undue activity by Federal officeholders. Turn the rascals out!

A Wolf in Sheep's Clothing.

Senator McCreary, who is engaged in an active campaign of the State, continues to be received everywhere with the greatest enthusiasm. He has addressed large audiences at every point where he has spoken, and his prospects seem to be all that can be desired.

Governor Beckham is making a grandstand play on the temperance issue. It seems impossible for any one to be deluded by this display of hypocrisy. He has been Governor for six years, and it is strange that only recently his convictions should have become pronounced. He has made an attempt to put on the lid in Louisville, but an attempt alone has it been. The lid has been blown sky high since, but the Governor still continues to make political capital out of this feeble performance. If the temperance people are looking for a friend in him, they will find a wolf in sheep's clothing indeed. It seems impossible for any sensible person to be taken in by such a silly argument. If Mr. Beckham means business, why does he not keep the lid on in Louisville, as well as enforcing it in Covington, Newport and elsewhere.

Bad Combination.

Politics was introduced into the session of the Methodist Conference at Central City last week, when a resolution was offered indorsing Governor Beckham for the good he has done for the temperance cause. Let it be understood though that it was a conference of the Northern Methodist church. Isn't it funny that people who are good, or at least pretend to be good, can be hoodwinked in this way? Beckham might fool the sanctified but he is not fooling anybody that has a little common sense about his position on the temperance question. Such endorsement as this of a man like Beckham by a religious body of Christian people is enough to make one doubt the Christian religion—politics and the church do not go together in this day and generation, especially at this time in Kentucky politics, the combination won't work.

So Much For Annexation.

Fleas are invading certain sections of the country in droves and are making life miserable for all people whose acquaintance they make, and they are notorious for being of a friendly disposition. They are no respecter of people and make prince and pauper alike come to the scratch. It is said that they have been brought in from the Philippines. So much for annexation. There is usually a penalty attached.

Stop It, Women!

Texas Woman says if only half the lying in the world were stopped, the world would be five times as good as it is. We believe half the lying would be stopped, if the women would quit asking their belated husbands, "Where have you been?" Stop it, women!

This is Remarkable.

Tom Davis, of the Maysville Ledger, says, "One of the most remarkable sights witnessed by visitors to the big Bluegrass Fair was the headless statue of Henry Clay, which still surmounts his stately monument in the Lexington Cemetery."

SCALPING THE ENEMY

HOW THE INDIANS GLORIED IN THIS FIENDISH PRACTICE.

The Greater the Bravery of the Victim the More His Scalp Was Prized. Men Who Survived This Terrible Ordeal—The Case of Robert McGee.

Of the origin of scalp taking but little is known, and that vague and indefinite. Nearly every tribe has some wild, weird legend to account for the custom, but these traditions vary widely as to the cause. That raising the hair of an enemy is of great antiquity there is no doubt, for in the Bible it is related how the soldiers tore the skin from the heads of their vanquished foes.

With the North American savage there appears to be some close affiliation between the departed and his hair. I have often asked many a blood begrimed warrior why he should care for a dead man's hair, and invariably a number of reasons have been assigned. It is an evidence to his people that he has triumphed over his enemy. The scalps are very prominent factors in the incantations of the medicine lodge, a feature of religious rites. The savage believes there is a wonderfully inherent power in the scalp of an enemy. All the excellent qualities of the victim go with his hair the moment it is wrenched from his head. If the victim is a renowned warrior so much greater is the anxiety to procure his scalp, for the fortunate possessor then inherits all the bravery and prowess of its original owner.

I never knew of but one instance in all my experience among the Indians covering a period of more than a third of a century where a white man taken prisoner in battle escaped death. It was a great many years ago; the party, a dear friend, is still living, a grand old mountaineer, but the homeliest man on earth probably. He was red faced, wrinkled and pockmarked, with a mouth as large and full of teeth as a gorilla, and there was no more hair on his head than there is on a billiard ball.

He was captured in a prolonged fight and taken to the village of the tribe, where the principal chief resided. That dignitary gave one disgusted look at the prisoner and said that he was "bad medicine," and, if not the "evil spirit" himself, closely related to it. The chief ordered his subordinates to furnish the prisoner with a pony, loaded with provisions, provided him with a rifle and told him to go back to his people.

For the reasons stated the Indian of the great plains and Rocky mountains would rather take one scalp of a famous scout or army officer who had successfully chastised them—for example, Custer, Sully, Miles or Crook—than a dozen scalps of ordinary white men.

There are many instances on record where men have been scalped and yet survived the terrible ordeal, but in every case the scalper supposed his victim dead, the latter taking good care that his foeman should not be disabused of the supposed fact.

In 1867 a party of Indians took up a rail on the Union Pacific railroad and laid obstructions on the track. After dark a freight train ran into the trap and was wrecked. The engine driver and firemen were instantly killed. The conductor and brakeman jumped off, to find themselves beset by a band of yelling savages. The engineer escaped in the darkness, but the luckless brakeman was shot and fell. The Indian who had fired dismounted from his pony, scalped him, stripped him of his clothing and rode away.

Early in the morning another freight train was flagged by a hideous looking object, which turned out to be the brakeman, who had been shot through the body and scalped. He had recovered his senses, and, knowing that the train was due, walked some distance down the track to save it from being wrecked. He was taken on board, and the train moved up to the wreck, which, after plundering it, the Indians left just as it was thrown over through their devilish act.

I saw the unfortunate man some months afterward. He was perfectly recovered, but with a horrible looking head. He stated that the bullet, although knocking him down, had not made him unconscious, and the greatest trial during the awful night was the necessity of shamming dead, he not daring to even groan while the Indian was sawing at his scalp with a very dull knife.

The other instance which has come under my own observation is that of Robert McGee. In 1864 McGee, a slender stripling of a lad, came to Leavenworth, Kan., seeking employment. That town was the base of government supplies for all the frontier military posts, even as far away as Arizona. A freight caravan was at that time loading for Fort Union, N. M. The wagons and whole outfit were owned by a contractor named H. C. Barret, but he would not take the chances of the long and perilous trip of more than 700 miles through the Indian infested plains unless the government leased the train outright or gave him an indemnifying bond or assurance against loss. The bond was given and Barret proceeded to hire teamsters—a hard task on account of the danger attending the journey. Young McGee was among the number engaged, and the caravan started on July 1, 1864.

It took the old Santa Fe trail, striking the Arkansas river at the great bend of that stream near its confluence with the Walnut. The region was very rough and called the "dark and bloody ground," for some of the worst Indian massacres in the history of the plains were perpetrated there. Some insignificant skirmishes with the Indians had taken place, but nothing to cause any serious alarm, and now, as the caravan was approaching the vicinity of Fort Larned, its proximity was believed to be sufficient protection from further possible danger.

On the afternoon of July 18—it had been an excessively hot day—the caravan went into camp at an early hour. The escorting troops stacked arms about half a mile distant, but in full view of the train. The men should have kept a good lookout for surprises—probably did in a way—but there was a feeling of security in the knowledge that a regular attack by savages is rarely made until the early hours of the morning, when sleep is heaviest.

About 4 o'clock, however, a band of Brule Sioux, under the lead of Little Turtle, descended from the sand hills in all the fury of a tornado, uttering their wild war whoops, and of all the small army of men employed by the caravan young Robert McGee alone came out alive to tell the story of the massacre. Every individual was shot dead and scalped as he lay or sat at the mess table. The mules, of course, went to swell the herd of the savages, but the wagons were destroyed by fire, their canvas covers cut up into breech-cloth and the flour with which the caravan was loaded emptied from its sacks on the prairie.

Young McGee was attacked by Little Turtle himself and knocked to the ground by one blow of his tomahawk. As he lay there, partially stunned and bleeding, Little Turtle fired two arrows into his body, pinning him to the earth. Then, in a transport of fiendishness, he took Robert's own pistol and shot him, the bullet lodging in his backbone. Not quite satisfied that he had made a good job of it, he stooped over the boy's prostrate body and, running his knife around his head, lifted sixty-four square inches of his scalp, trimming it off just back of the ears.

Believing his victim to be dead by that time, the chief abandoned him, but others of the band in passing hacked him with their knives and poked holes into him with their long lances. All the others in the train were long since dead, killed outright, and their bodies mutilated.

After the savages had completed their work they rode, whooping and yelling away, and the troops that had witnessed the whole affair from their vantage ground came upon the scene to investigate and learn whether the Sioux had been properly met or not by the ill fated men of the caravan. The officer in command was very properly court martialed and dismissed in disgrace from the service. He never gave any satisfactory reason for his outrageous and cowardly conduct.

The only part the troops took in the affair was to bury the dead. When they attempted to put young McGee under the ground they found a very lively corpse, despite the fact that he was scalped and had received fourteen distinct wounds, any one of which would have terminated the life of an ordinary man.

After interring the dead the soldiers hastened to Fort Larned, thirty miles distant, where young McGee was placed under the care of the post surgeon. It was three months before he was able to be moved from there. During that time he had fair command of his mental faculties and was sufficiently strong to tell all the incidents of the attack.

The owner of the caravan, who had remained in Leavenworth, on hearing what had befallen his property put in a claim for big damages from the government and was awarded a sum which made him independent for life, but he persistently refused to do anything for the sole survivor.

McGee's claims were laid before the president, and in October, 1864, Mr. Lincoln sent him a letter and a pass by special envoy, directing him to come to Washington as soon as he was able to travel and stating that he himself would see that McGee's wrongs were righted.

When McGee had recovered sufficiently to move about, his mind, which had been remarkably clear up to that time, began to cloud, and he became possessed of a mania to hunt Sioux to the death. In one of his frenzied spells the pass and the letter from President Lincoln were stolen from him, and neither the president nor the army took any further notice of him.

For a dozen years after receiving his injuries McGee was a wanderer, and when it was discovered that Little Turtle had been wiped out it was said that the biggest notch on McGee's gun barrel commemorated the full measure of his revenge, a long mark for the chief and nine shorter ones for the subordinate headmen who had bitten the dust at the command of the unerring rifle that never failed to execute its mission when pointed at a Brule's breast.

After Little Turtle had been sent to the happy hunting grounds McGee's mind began to regain its normal equilibrium until at last he once more became perfectly sane.—Kansas City Star.

Fasting Spiders.

An interesting instance of the much discussed ability of spiders to exist for lengthy periods without food has been noted by J. H. Fabre, the eminent naturalist, who while studying the habits of the spider known as Lycosa narbonensis observed that this spider carries its little ones upon its back during seven months and that during this time the young spiders consume absolutely no food. He concluded from this observation that it is the solar heat and light that for them directly take the place of nourishment. In other words, "the motor heat in these young animals instead of being released from the food might be utilized directly as the sun, source of all life, radiates it."—London Sphere.

DETERMINING LEVELS.

Method by Which Every Man May Be His Own Surveyor.

A simple way of roughly determining levels, and one which can readily be practiced by any one and which has the advantage of not requiring any special apparatus, is by means of a spirit level and a board with a straight edge. The way to go about it is this: First determine on two points the levels of which you wish to know and drive stakes into the ground. Then take a board with a straight edge and tack it to a tree, if one happens to be available, in a line with these two stakes. Put the board at such a height that you can readily sight over it and carefully level this board by means of the spirit level. Then sight it over toward one of the stakes, having some one at that stake who will, by means of a small piece of paper, locate the point at which your line of vision cuts it—in other words, where a line projected from your sighting board would strike the stake. Make some sort of mark at this point and then sight to the other stake in the same way and mark the point where the line would strike it. By measuring distances that these two points are above the ground you can get the difference in levels with reasonable accuracy. For instance, if your line of vision has cut one stake eight feet from the ground and the other one five feet from the ground, then obviously the difference in level is three feet, or, in other words, the vicinity of the stake on which the mark is five feet from the ground is three feet higher than the other stake, and you will have a three foot fall from draining from this point to the other.—Farming.

THE ELOQUENT NUDGE.

An Incident Illustrating a Trait in Woman's Nature.

"Do you see the woman walking in front of us there?" asked the man with the fashionable tie to the friend who was strolling up Broadway with him. "Do you notice anything particularly striking about her? Nothing, except that she is very well dressed? That's what I would say. Now, I'll bet you half a dollar that when she passes the three women walking just ahead of her all three will nudge each other simultaneously."

The woman behind was walking faster than the three in front and she soon passed them. The three women looked her over from foot to head, then nudged each other with their elbows as if possessed with the same thought. "How did you know it?" inquired the friend as the other pocketed the half dollar.

"I didn't know it," was the reply. "If I had it would have been taking an unfair advantage of you to bet. But I was reasonably certain of it. There is a certain indescribable something in some women's manner, appearance and carriage that causes all other women to nudge each other at sight of her. I couldn't tell you just what it is, but I'm ready to put up a wager on it every time. The nudge is simply a part of women's sign language which means something that cannot be put into words, but which every other woman understands."—New York Press.

THE ISLAMIC WORLD.

Its Two Divisions and Its Attitude Toward the Sultan.

The Islamic world is divided into two great divisions—the Sunni Mohammedans, who occupy the Turkish empire, Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, Tripoli, Afghanistan, Egypt and the Sudan, and the Shi'ah Mohammedans, who occupy Persia and are scattered all over the Mohammedan world, some 5,000,000 of them being in India. By the doctrine of the latter the caliph must be a lineal descendant of the prophet. The Sunnis, on the other hand, do not insist on this, but it is an article of necessary faith in Sunni theology and law that the caliph must be an Arab of pure blood belonging to Mohammed's tribe. On this point there is absolutely no difference in the Mohammedan world, barring one or two insignificant sects out of the hundreds of sects into which Mohammedanism is divided.

One proof test is the Friday prayer. In no country out of Turkey is prayer offered up for the sultan of Turkey. To do so would be an act of sedition and treated as such. I would not give much for the life of the mollah who dared to offer up prayers for the sultan in any mosque in Afghanistan or Persia. The Arabs repudiate with scorn the idea of the sultan being caliph; nor, indeed, has he ever dared formally to appeal to the Mohammedan world in that character. He was never acknowledged as caliph in India, and if he publicly claimed the title formally even in Constantinople it is probable that he would find himself deposed by a feta of the Sheikh ul Islam.—London Times.

Another Shock.

"Yes," said the waiter, "this cafe is thoroughly up to date. We cook by electricity."

"Is that so?" said the guest, pointing to a platter. "Then will you please give that beefsteak another shock?"—Detroit Free Press.

Called His Bluff.

"What!" cried the brutal husband. "You gave that old overcoat of mine to a tramp? You should have asked me first. I had placed a hundred dollars in bills in one of the pockets of that coat, simply to have the money in a safe place until you should want to purchase some clothes." "William Henry Sudsforth," replied the fond wife, fixing him with a judicial eye, "you worked that game on me two years ago. I went through the pockets of that coat and found a wornout glove, six gloves, five cardroom seeds, four matches and a suburban time card. I'm going shopping for my dress tomorrow."

One Eyed Giants.

Sir John Mandeville saw all sorts of queer things and wrote about them in his celebrated book of travels. It was in 1336 that the veracious John visited a certain group of isles (yes he called them) which was inhabited by a race of one eyed giants. Of them he says: "In one of these isles ben folk of grate stature, as gigantes, and they ben hideous for to loke upon. An thei han but on eye, and that is in ye myddyl of ye front." He also tells of another one of these "yes" inhabited by a race of one legged dwarfs, each having three eyes.

WEIGHT OF THE SUN.

HOW THE ASTRONOMERS SOLVE
THIS WONDERFUL PROBLEM.

If You Will Multiply 333,264 by Seven Sextillions, You Will Get Approximately the Number of Tons of Matter Contained in the Great Orb.

To weigh the sun, moon, earth or any other body, said Professor Edgar L. Larkin, the celebrated director of Echo Mountain observatory, to the writer, is not a very difficult matter, though to those ignorant of astronomy and mathematics it would perhaps appear so. Of course weight is merely a relative term, for at the exact center of gravity a body weighs nothing at all. Weight varies as we approach the gravitation point or recede from it, and the expression as employed in everyday life—when we buy a pound of steak or a ton of coals—simply means the weight used on the surface of the earth because we live there.

Now, supposing you are desirous of weighing the earth, how would you go about it? Well, if your education had been neglected and you were in consequence ignorant of mathematics you might decide to cut up this terrestrial globe of ours in blocks and bring each block to the surface of the earth and there weigh it on an ordinary pair of scales. The operation would doubtless be a costly and fatiguing one, and perhaps many unscientific landowners might object to your carrying off their property even though you explained that it was merely as a temporary loan. But let us for argument's sake suppose that you succeeded.

Well, having carried each block to the surface (and many of them would,
of course, have been brought from the very center of the earth) one at a time (returning each to its proper place before weighing the next) and having discovered that each block weighed a ton, then before your labors ended and the last block of earth had been placed on the scales you would have dealt with rather less than seven sextillions.

This of course is a tremendous number of tons for any moving mass to weigh, but there is a time twice each year when the earth actually weighs nothing at all. In October last this earth gradually began to lose weight like some huge giant dying of a decline until at a certain moment of time it weighed only an ounce, then half an ounce, then a quarter, and finally, just for about the fifty-thousandth part of a second, it weighed absolutely nothing whatever—not even so much as a soap bubble which a baby might blow away.

To realize this you must remember that the earth does not travel round the sun in an exact circle, so that the distance from the sun is always varying, which of course alters the power of attraction or, in other words, the earth's weight. But in October and April of each year the earth is at an exact average distance during the fraction of a second, at which time, as I have said before, it weighs nothing.
How short a space of time this is may be judged from the fact that the earth moves at the rate of eighteen and a half miles every second.

But to weigh the earth in the manner suggested would be a very costly matter, and so it is found to be more satisfactory to employ mathematics, when we shall arrive at the same results, assuming of course that we are correct in our deductions. And now as to the most usual means employed in weighing the sun. Having satisfied ourselves as to the true weight of the earth, we call that "One" or "Unity." That is the basis on which we work.

The next thing to do is to mount to some elevation—the top of a tower or the roof of a house will answer our purpose very well—drop a stone and find out how far it will fall in one second of time and what its exact rate of speed will be at the end of the first second.

This is not so easy as it sounds, but we can spare ourselves the fatigue of calculating, for after 300 years scientists have by means of the most delicate instruments arrived at the proved conclusion that at the end of the first second the stone will be at a distance of 16.1 feet from the starting point and will be then traveling at the rate of 32.2 feet per second. This 32.2 is the most important factor in our calculations and has been called the astronomical scales, for by means of it we can weigh the sidereal universe.

Now, here, said Professor Larkin, taking a paper from his desk, is an article which I wrote some time ago on the weighing of the sun, and I do not think you can do better than make an extract from it, which will save me much needless repetition, and he handed me the manuscript, from which I quote the following paragraphs:

"Every object in the celestial vault seen by the eye of man is a falling body. The earth is a body forever falling toward the sun and the moon fore-ever toward the earth. If we can find with what speed the earth is falling toward the sun at the end of our exact second a clew is obtained that will lead through a maze of figures to the mass of the sun. This must be true, for it has been discovered that if the earth contained quadruple its present quantity of matter the stone would fall at the rate of 64.4 feet per second. And Newton discovered that if the stone be taken 3,958 miles away from the earth and dropped its speed at the end of the first second will be 8.05 feet. But 3,958 miles from the earth is twice as far from the center as is the surface, and 8.05 feet is one-fourth of 32.2. But 4 is the square of 2, so gravity diminishes as the square of the distance increases and directly as the matter increases.

"The earth is 95,000,000 miles from the sun, and this, divided by 3,958, equals approximately 23,496. Therefore, take a stone to the distance of the sun and it will be 23,496 times farther from the center of the earth than the surface is. Now square this 23-496. Multiply 32.2 by 12 and the product will be 386.4—the number of inches in 32.2 feet. Divide 386.4 by the big number squared and the quotient will be .0000007 of an inch, the speed with which the stone will be falling at the end of the first second.

"This is exceedingly slow, but then gravity exerted by the mass of the earth 93,000,000 miles away is naturally somewhat weak. But the center of the earth is that distance from the center of the sun and actually falls every second toward the sun with a speed at the end of a second having a velocity of 233285 of an inch, which is something less than one-fourth of an inch.
Divide .233285 by .0000007 and the quotient is 333,264—that is to say, there are 333,264 times more matter in the sun than in the earth. If, therefore, we multiply this number by seven sextillions we find how many tons the sun weighs."—London Tit-Bits.

EASTMAN JOHNSON.

He Was Once Invited to Be Court
Painter at The Hague.

Holland, the country above all others to which art owes gratitude for the creation and maintenance of sane traditions of painting, rendered a signal service to American art in the middle of the last century in the solid technical training which it gave to Eastman Johnson.

The education of our earlier painters had been various. When the nineteenth century was nearing its middle period there was a general exodus of students to Dusseldorf, and it was to pursue his studies there that in 1849 Eastman Johnson took ship for Europe.

The vessel on which Johnson sailed, bound for Antwerp, was detained at Flushing, and it is to be regretted that no written record has been made of the story which Johnson delighted to tell, and told so well, of how he and his comrade, George Henry Hall, who survives him—impatient young pilgrims desiring to plunge at once into the promised land of art—left the vessel and, ignorant of the language and customs of the country, trudged on foot along the river Scheldt toward their goal.

On their way each step revealed to their new world eyes some detail filled with romance and promise, until after nightfall they found themselves before the closed gates of the city of Antwerp, which was then a walled town obedient to the old custom of curfew.

After an amusing parley in conflicting tongues the capital of Flemish art received them kindly, and henceforward the art of Flanders and Holland made so direct and sympathetic an appeal to Johnson that his sojourn in Dusseldorf was comparatively brief, and its lessons had little or no visible effect on his lifework.

His earlier student stage passed, he settled at The Hague, where his success was so marked that when after an absence of long duration he determined to return to the United States his patriotic purpose was carried out in the face of a temptation to accept the formal proffer of the position of court painter at The Hague.—Scribner's.

The Will For the Deed.

After Miss Lavinia Cobb, who had called in her nephew, Frederic Cobb, attorney at law, to draw her will, had made bequests to beloved relatives and friends and to unknown individuals whom she admired, and had remembered her pet charities, she began on religious institutions.

"Now, there's the First Baptist," she said enthusiastically. "I don't want to leave anything to the church proper, because it is the richest in town. But I want you to put down $150 for Mr.
Bicknell as a slight recognition of his casual service to my soul. And—"

"But, aunty," began the lawyer nephew, who had long been striving to speak. "What's wrong now, Freddy?" demanded Miss Lavinia. "Isn't 'casual service' all right? It is precisely what I mean. I am a member of Mr. Marvin's church—and I shall remember him handsomely later—but Mr. Bicknell's sermons have done me much good, and I have heard him—well, perhaps ten times in all, so I think 'casual service' just expresses it. But if you think it doesn't or that it would make trouble put down the legal equivalent."

"It's not the phraseology, aunty, but your estate. You haven't sufficient property to make so many and such large gifts."

"Oh, I know that as well as you do," Miss Lavinia said, with gentle impudence. "I just want to show all my friends how I feel toward them. You needn't look so—so—judicial, Freddy.
It's my will, not yours."—Youth's Companion.

A Problem at Cambridge.

When Lord Rayleigh, the British scientist, was a student at Cambridge the examiners set among other problems one which they based on an article in a German mathematical periodical supposed unlikely to have penetrated to Cambridge. Only two men solved it, Mr. Sturt (Lord Rayleigh) and another. The examiners asked the other man about this problem. "Oh," he said, "I take the — (mentioning the name of the periodical), and I was very glad to find that, thanks to an article in the last number, that problem came out quite easily." When Mr.
Sturt's turn came they expected a similar answer, but he astonished them by replying: "The fact is, gentlemen, that I sometimes contribute to —, and I could not help feeling greatly flattered that you should have thought my little problem worthy of a place in this examination." He was awarded the prize.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address: F. J. GIANT MAGNETS.

The Operation of Lifting Monster Loads With Them.

The peculiar properties of an electric current often lead one to fancy that it may perchance be endowed with the spirit of intelligence, so mysterious are its inner workings.

A most curious use of electricity is the adoption of lifting magnets in machine shop and mill practice. An electro magnet in its simplest form consists of a piece of soft iron wound with a large number of turns of insulated copper wire. When an electric current passes through the windings of wire the electric forces are converted into magnetic forces and the coil of wire and core of soft iron assume all the characteristics of a common steel magnet.

The operation of lifting magnets is quite simple. The magnet is attached to the crane hook, and the ends of the wire forming the coil are connected directly with the dynamo. The crane is then swung so that the magnet is suspended directly over the metal to be removed. The magnet is then lowered until it comes in contact with the object, the current is turned on, the hoist is raised and the mass of metal to be moved clings to the magnet.

When the load reaches the desired point it may be dropped without first lowering the magnet or it may be lowered, the current shut off and the material deposited gently. The crane operator needs no help to load or unload, and the work can be done in half the time with a saving of from three to four men.—New York Herald.

THE BLOUSE.

Its Name Came Originally From Pelusium, in Egypt.

The environs of Pelusium, in lower Egypt, in ages past stood foremost among sunny lands where the culture of indigo and the manufacture of fabrics died with it were the principal industries. In the middle ages, when the Crusaders landed on the coast of Egypt and entered Pelusium, where Port Said is now situated, they purchased quantities of the blue material, which they cast over their panoply of war. Afterward the same material was made in France and became the fabric of which the working garment of the male peasant was made and is to this day.

The name of the locality was given the fabric, and this was retained by the French production, but contracted to Pelouse, which later on was changed to blouse (pronounced bluze). The smock worn by English male peasants is a similar garment and, though it is not written in history that the blouse crossed the channel soon after its entry into France, it would seem probable from the fact that in other times the smock was now and then called a "blowse."

This, fair ladies, is the origin of the garment of our warmest affection, to which we have loyally clung for years in spite of many ruthless detractors and will continue to do so notwithstanding the fact that, whether called "bluze" or "blowse," it is not of aristocratic lineage.

Landor and Wordsworth.

Walter Savage Landor was an intemperate person in words and hated Wordsworth. Were there ever more contemptuous words than these of Landor in reference to Wordsworth? "Pastiness and flatness are the qualities of a pancake and thus far he attained his end. Let him place the accessories on the table lest what is insipid and clammy grow into duller accretion and moisture viscosity the more I masticate it." In Landor's letter to Ralph Waldo Emerson he writes: "We must now descend to Wordsworth. He often gave an opinion on authors which he never had read, Plato for instance. He speaks contemptuously of the Scotch. I praised a line of Scott's on the dog of a traveler lost in the snow (if I remember on Skiddaw. He said it was the only good one in the poem and began instantly to recite a whole poem of his own on the same subject."

Buttons.

Buttons are certainly as ancient as the siege of Troy, in the ninth century before our era, for, both in that unfortunate city and at Mycenae, Dr. Schliemann discovered objects of gold, silver and bronze which could have had no other use than that of buttons. In mediaeval times the clothing of the common people was generally fastened with wooden pegs of the type and form of those resorted to in emergencies by the country boy of the present day. Buttons covered with cloth were prohibited by George I. in 1720 to encourage the manufacture of metal buttons.

Suspicious.

"Mother," says the doubting wife, "I do not believe Henry is all that he should be."

"What is wrong with him now, Agnes? A short time ago you were complaining that he stayed out too late of nights. Is he staying out later than ever?"

"No. He spends every evening at home now, and really that looks to me as though he had something on his conscience."—Life.

Incredulous, but Cheerful.

Father (at head of stairs)—Ethel, what time is it? Ethel (in drawing room)—It's a quarter past 10, father. Father—All right. Don't forget to start the clock again after the young man goes out to get his breakfast.—Stray Stories.

Wagner's opera, "Die Meistersinger," was sung for the first time in America at the Metropolitan Opera House Jan. 2, 1896.

How Fatigue is Caused.

The fatigue felt after muscular exertion is chiefly due to the formation within the muscles themselves of certain nitrogenous poisons which are the result of chemical action going on and which have a paralyzing action on the muscular fibers. These poisons are formed by the breaking up of certain reserve materials which exist in the muscles without actually forming an essential portion of them. When these reserve materials are thus split up they give out energy which may be available as a source of heat or as a cause of motion. They accumulate in the tissues of persons who lead sedentary lives, and when such people take much exercise they are very liable to an attack of gout or feverish prostration, owing to the sudden accumulation within the blood of too many waste products for the kidneys to remove at once. The immunity from fatigue possessed by those who are continually exercising is due to the fact that these reserved materials have been gradually removed during the course of training and little remains capable of producing gouty poisons when much exercise is taken.

The Word "Crank."

Crank in the sense of an eccentric person is a new word. The very first written instance of crank in the modern sense that could be found for Dr. Murray's dictionary was in the reports of the trial of Guiteau, President Garfield's murderer. Guiteau's reference to somebody as a crank gave the word a vogue that has gone on spreading. But the adjective cranky was known in 1787 as meaning sickly (the German "krank"), and to Dickens in the senses of cross and crochety. In all its meanings it springs from the root idea of crookedness, as does crank in its sixteenth century sense of a deceitful trick, as in "quips and cranks."

The History of Tacitus.

The entire history of Tacitus, as we have the work, was regained from a single copy found in the fifteenth century in a monastery of Westphalia. That we should owe the works of this author to one copy is a remarkable circumstance, for the Emperor Tacitus, who claimed to be a descendant of the historian, had copies of the history placed in every library of the empire and each year had ten copies transcribed for presentation to scholars. All, it seems, perished, save the Westphalian copy.

The Great Difficulty.

"One-half of the world's happiness is solved when a person learns to mind his own business."

"Yes, but it's the other half that causes the most trouble."

"What's that?"

"Getting other people to mind theirs."

The Best Literature.

The best literature of our day is not in fiction. It is in poetry, in biography, in history and in criticism.—London Sphere.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circular and testimonials. Address: F. J. A Swell Attraction.

"A Trip to San Francisco Over Land and Sea" is a delightful and fascinating experience as any at the carnival. Seated in the swaying train amidst a car filled with mirthful people, one hears the grind and clang of the wheels on the rails, and looking out from the observation car, the most beautiful and gorgeous scenery goes flitting by as one goes over the Rocky Mountains and through the Royal Gorge under one bridge and over another stream, while the glories of a mountain sunrise is a pleasing feature of the scene.

Pulling into San Francisco one sees the stately buildings and busy streets decorated as they were for a festive occasion prior to the earthquake and ruin. Later the car enters the city after the destruction and presents the scene of desolation where nothing but ruins remain of the attractive buildings we had seen just a few moments before.

From Frisco one takes a trip by water home and feels the roll of the ship on the billows, which may be seen on the ocean beyond. A fearful storm arises suddenly and huge waves may be seen as they toss the boat this way and that and last the boat in the might of their prey. The passing of the storm and the beautiful cloud and wave effects, as once again the boat pulls safely into the imaginary harbor of Delaware, is a treat that all should enjoy at the Carnival.

DO YOU KNOW

That Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine sold through druggists for woman's weaknesses and peculiar ailments that does not contain any quantities of alcohol? It is also the only medicine, especially prepared for the cure of the delicate diseases peculiar to women, the maker of which is not afraid to take his patients into his full confidence, by printing upon each bottle wrapper all the ingredients entering into the medicine. Ask your druggist if this is not true.

"Favorite Prescription," too, is the only medicine for women, all the ingredients of which have the unqualified endorsement of the leading medical writers of the several schools of practice, recommending them for the cure of the diseases for which the "Prescription" is advised. Write to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free booklet, and read the numerous extracts from standard medical authorities praising the several ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are made, and don't forget that no other medicines put up for sale through druggists for domestic use can show any such professional endorsement. This, of itself, is of far more weight and importance than any amount of so-called "testimonials" so conspicuously flaunted before the public, in favor of the alcoholic compounds.

The "Favorite Prescription" cures all woman's peculiar weaknesses and derangements, thus banishing the periodical headaches, backaches, bearing-down distress, tenderness and dragging-down sensations in lower abdomen, accompanied by weakening and disagreeable catarrhal, pelvic drains and kindred symptoms.

Dr. Pierce and his staff of skilled specialists may be consulted free by addressing as above. All correspondence is treated as sacredly confidential. By consulting in this way the disagreeable questionings and personal "examinations" are avoided.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser contains some very interesting and valuable chapters on the diseases peculiar to women. It contains over one thousand recipes. It is sent post paid, for receipt of sufficient in one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only, or 21 cents for a copy in flexible paper covers, or 31 cents for a cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce as above.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. One laxative, two or three cathartic.

Immense Land Deal.

The largest land deal ever made in Southeastern Kentucky was consummated at Pineville, Wednesday, when C. S. Neal, general manager of the North Jellico Coal Company, of Gray, Ky., and Louisville, purchased from A. J. Asher, of Pineville, 5,000 acres of coal and timber lands, lying between the forks of Straight creek, for $150,000. The land is understood to have been purchased for the Speed Coal Company, of Louisville, and they will proceed at once to develop it.

Splendid Public Schools.

Hon. F. L. McChesney, Superintendent of Public Schools, is now engaged in visiting the public schools, both white and colored, in the county, and says that greater interest is now being taken in the cause of education in the public schools than ever before.

The attendance, Mr. McChesney said, was larger than for years, and children seem to take more interest and are learning fast under the well qualified teachers now secured as the pay is better than in former years.

Mr. McChesney is making a most efficient Superintendent, and takes deep interest in his schools.

The Lexington Trots.

After a day's delay by rain, the 1906 meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association began at Lexington Wednesday. The track was in splendid condition, the weather mild and pleasant and the sun shone for the greater part of the day.

A large crowd filled the grand stand and the boxes were occupied by people prominent in the Bluegrass region and from other sections of the country.

The three-year-old trotting Futurity, one of the richest stakes offered in America for harness horses, $14,000 being the prize divided among the first four horses, was the feature of the day's program. It was won by Siliko, which was always the favorite in the betting, had the speed of the field, and would probably have won in three straight heats had not The Abbe, in the third heat, plunged into the wheel of Siliko's sulky, causing a smash-up, in which McCarthy, who held the reins on Siliko, was thrown out and badly bruised, and putting The Abbe and Siliko out of the race for the heat which was won by Lightsome, a Bourbon bred horse.

The Abbe was disqualified for the race on account of the foul, but Siliko was permitted to start in the fourth heat, which he won gamely, thus taking the race.

The Tennessee Stake, $3,000; 2:06 Class, pacing, was won by Ecstatic in three straight heats in 2:04, 2:04½ and 2:04. Argot Boy was second and Bolivar third.

The Futurity, $14,000, was won by Siliko. Lightsome, second and Ed Custer third. Time, 2:14½, 2:14½, 2:11½, 2:13½.

The 2:08 Class, pacing, purse $1,000, was won by Lady May. Schermerhorn was second and Phalla third. Time 2:06½, 2:07, 2:06½.

The Way of It.

In Louisville last week four crap shooters were fined and given thirty days in the workhouse, and three ordinary stock gamblers were turned loose with a reprimand by the Judge. And yet the crap shooters were the more honorable of the two, because they put up the cash while the other fellows were gambling on visionary futures and no tangible assets.
